Click here for the story in Roll Call (subscription required).

Excerpt: "Make no mistake about it, we're getting into the hard part," Rep. Mike Pence (R-Ind.), the panel's ranking member, said Tuesday. "We're going to reopen some old wounds from a very painful night."

The committee will soon move to interview Majority Leader Steny Hoyer (D-Md.), Minority Leader John Boehner (R-Ohio), Majority Whip James Clyburn (D-S.C.) and Minority Whip Roy Blunt (R-Mo.), as well as about a dozen rank-and-file lawmakers who have volunteered to testify, including Rep. Mike McNulty (D-N.Y.), who presided over the House floor during the disputed vote.