With oil prices on the rise this week, Congressman Pence is telling Hoosiers America needs a new energy strategy and the current administration's energy policy is flawed:

"The administration issued one deep water permit in the Gulf this week . One deep water permit does not an energy policy make. It's time to give the America people more access to American oil."

Pence is former chairman of the American Energy Solutions Group. As chairman, he advocated an " all of the above " approach as a solution to our nation's energy needs.
