

The New York Post ran a column by Brian Anderson on Monday which considered the possibility of the 'Fairness Doctrine' under an Obama Administration:

Would a President Obama veto a new Fairness Doctrine if Congress enacted one? It's doubtful.

The Fairness Doctrine was an astonishingly bad idea. It's a too-tempting power for government to abuse. When the doctrine was in effect, both Democratic and Republican administrations regularly used it to harass critics on radio and TV.