

House Republican Leader John Boehner announced today that House Republicans would be back on the House floor Monday "to continue and unprecedented protest that began last Friday, when dozens of Republicans joined hundreds of American citizens on the House floor to protest Speaker Nancy Pelosi's (D-CA) decision to send Congress home for the rest of the summer without a vote on legislation to lower gas prices and move America toward energy independence."

Congressman Pence will be there, as noted in this release from our office today.

For a little flavor of what to expect, check out this blog entry that includes unedited video from Friday's protest on the floor of the House.