

Congressman Mike Pence participated in a Health Care Forum over the weekend, as reported by the Palladium-Item :

The Congressman told the crowd that healthcare has been the most discussed topic since he took office in 2003.

"If you are a person who walks into one of America's public hospitals, you will receive health care," he said. "Now the question is how does the public meet those costs?"

Pence said there were a few solutions that have been mentioned in Congress to solve the health care problem.

He discussed a voucher program that allows individuals or family to get a fixed sum of money from the government and get health care.
