

One of the biggest joys about this job is not only getting to represent my fellow Hoosiers in Congress but also watching my staff mature. Today I'd like to draw attention to a staff member who hails from eastern Indiana and has become an invaluable member of our team--Ryan Fisher.

Ryan is our legislative director and a native of my hometown of Columbus, Indiana. He has the monumental task of directing, tracking and advising me on all the legislation that comes through my office.

It was the distinct privilege of my wife Karen and I to attend Ryan's wedding, even though we were in the midst of wrapping up our legislative session Saturday.

Hoosiers can be proud of Ryan as a local boy who makes them proud as he serves them.

On behalf of Karen and the entire Pence office, I wish Ryan and his new bride Tara many years of happiness together!
