

It should be a memorable week for the 6th District staff in Washington. In addition to unveiling our new and improved website, this week I will host a live web broadcast on the Internet from Capitol Hill that will be seen by millions of school kids around America. The Internet program is known as the Digital Field Trip and is sponsored by the Smithsonian Institute and our own Ball State University. Several members of Congress are joining me for the Thursday live Internet broadcast where kids from all over America will participate in a mock Congressional hearing.

Muncie will also come to the Hill as we welcome a delegation of city officials to talk economic development. In the midst of hearings on Iraq (Thursday) and continued negotiations over the budget resolution with the Senate, it should be a busy week to be sure! mrp

Go here to read Roll Call's coverage of my new website.