

The House GOP Conference has on their blog a roundup of newspaper editorials across the nation, roundly panning the recently passed Democrat budget that Congressman Pence has called the "most fiscally irresponsible budget in American history".

Notably:

San Francisco Examiner: "Surely an act of hubris ... It was surely an act of hubris for President Obama to ask Congress to approve a $3.6 trillion federal budget for 2010 that runs a trillion-dollars worth of red ink its first year and then projects half-trillion deficits every year thereafter for a decade. Congress has never before been asked to consider spending of such magnitude, not even during wartime... The ultimate result will be a doubling of the national debt, a burden that will fall on our children and grandchildren." (4/6/09)

Congressman Pence gave multiple speeches during the budget debate, calling for fiscal restraint. This one is his most widely viewed:
