

"Marriage between a man and a woman is the most enduring human institution. Marriage was ordained by God, confirmed by law, and is the glue of the American family."

--Congressman Mike Pence

I believe that strong families make for a better Indiana and a better nation, and I will continue to protect the sacred institution of marriage. I support the Defense of Marriage Act, and I believe that traditional marriage should be defended in the law, in the courts, and, if need be, in the Constitution of the United States. I emphatically believe that the debate over marriage is not about discrimination. If someone engages in another lifestyle than I have chosen, that is their right in a free society. But tolerance does not require that we permit our courts to redefine an institution upon which our society depends.
